

Sept 2010: What Mothers Want: NJ Conference October 19, 2010

The NAMC is proud to present "What Mothers Want" in conjunction with Rutgers University. This event is the culmination of a research project conducted by Jocelyn Crowley, PhD of Rutgers University to survey mothers regarding work life integration and policies. Join us.

What Mothers Want:

Innovative Policies for the 21st Century Workplace

Why are mothers so harried between their jobs and family responsibilities?

What can we do about it?

Come to an innovative conference that brings academics and practitioners together for an exciting dialogue.

A conference organized by

Jocelyn Elise Crowley, Professor of Public Policy, Rutgers University and

Valerie Young, National Association of Mothers' Centers (NAMC)

October 19, 2010

9:00 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.

Roosevelt-Perkins Room (2nd Floor)

John J. Heldrich Center for Workforce Development

30 Livingston Avenue

New Brunswick, NJ

Featured Speakers:

Ellen Galinsky, President and Co-Founder, Families and Work Institute

Pamela Stone, Professor of Sociology, Hunter College, CUNY

Tara Brettholtz, President, Mothers & More

Melissa Milkie, Professor of Sociology, University of Maryland

Dina Bakst, Co-President and Co-Founder of A Better Balance: The Work & Family Legal Center

Kathleen Gerson, Professor of Sociology, New York University

Cheli English-Figaro, Co-Founder, Mocha Moms, Inc.

Space is limited and registration is required.

Click here to register.